GROW YOUR OWN VOTERS

Voting is a right, not a privilege! Growing your own voters can mean the difference between winning and losing. Registration drives are an important part of your campaign.

BEGIN VIDEO

After a successful petition drive, the next step in a campaign is the registration drive. During a door-to-door petition drive, you should have found people who were not registered. If you did not take steps to get them registered at that time, you will want to go back to them now. The registration drive is the best chance to find all the voters who need to register, as well as those who no longer live in the precincts you are covering. At this point, report nights should occur twice weekly to gather information from the precinct workers on the progress of registering new voters.

The registration drive is also an opportunity to familiarize people with your candidate. You should provide your precinct workers with registration piece to leave as they go door-to-door. This piece should have complete information about registration opportunities, and should say that this information is being provided by your candidate. It should also include the name of the office for which your candidate is running, the candidate's party affiliation, the date of the election, website address, email, the address and phone number of the campaign office, and the names of any well-known endorsers, along with a statement that further information about registration can be had at your campaign headquarters. This piece can be a simple sheet or a brochure with photos, etc. Everyone doing registration work for your candidate should have copies of this piece to distribute.

In October 1996 Illinois came into compliance with the National Voter Registration Act (NVRA), known familiarly as motor-voter. Since then we have had two valid registration systems in the state.

Volunteer Deputy Registrars
Any group can apply and participate in this program. Anyone who is at present a Deputy Registrar, or any civic organization which sponsors Deputy Registrars, can continue to register voters on the same non-partisan basis as in the past. Deputy Registrars may not combine voter registration with any partisan political activities. That means they cannot carry literature for any candidate or party or talk to voters about a candidate while doing voter registration. (For more information on how to become a Volunteer Deputy Registrar, see Appendix.)

Revised 10/29/03
No identification is required to register with an NVRA form. However, a new voter must vote in person at his/her first election. It will be possible to vote absentee for this first election, but only at the offices of an election authority or county clerk.

Persons participating in partisan political activities may distribute and collect NVRA forms for delivery to the appropriate election authority.

The NVRA forms are designed to be mailed by the voter, but experience shows that many forms are never mailed, if left with the voter. So, whether you are using the NVRA forms to register, change an address or a name, it is best to have the voter fill out the form, sign it, and return it to you.

Campaigns should keep track of those whom they assist to register. The Cook County Clerk provides submittal Sheets for the NVRA form, so that a copy is given to you as is the case with Deputy Registrar submittals. The Chicago Board of Election Commissioners does not provide such a receipt. You should copy the cards before submitting them and provide your Precinct Workers with a form on which to keep track of these new voters.
You need information about these new voters because new poll sheets will not be published until well after the last day for registration and you cannot afford to wait that long to start the canvass phase of the campaign. You will find that these new voters will be receptive to you and your candidate because you helped them to register. Be sure to add all of the new voters to your campaign master file (Chapter 3).

In addition to these two systems, voter registration is conducted on an on-going basis in Chicago at the Chicago Board of Elections and at public libraries. Suburban Cook County residents may register at any of the County Clerk's six offices, and at the offices of a city, village or township clerk. Throughout Illinois, voters can register at their city, village, township or county clerk's office, any Secretary of State driver's license facility, as well as public assistance and military recruitment offices. NVRA forms are also downloadable from the Chicago Board of Elections and several other websites.

Grace-Period Registration
State legislation enacted last year has established an additional grace period for voter registration where registrations will be taken at the main offices of the Cook County Clerk and the Chicago Board of Elections. Check with your county clerk outside of Cook County for locations. Also check with your governing Board of Elections for exact dates.

Two pieces of identification must be shown to register. Grace-period voters must vote absentee either by voting in person at the Election authority's office immediately after signing up to vote or requesting an absentee ballot by mail to complete at home and return to the Clerk's office before Election Day.

Grace-period registrants are not allowed to vote at the polls on Election Day or vote at any early voting site.
